

TALKS BEGUN BY EDEN AND EISENHOWER

10 Dead, 227 Injured In Fire at Church Supper

Men Become Beasts in Wild Panic to Escape

Terror Stalks Hall As Many Trampled In Rush for Exits

BALTIMORE (U.P.)—Eyewitnesses told today how "men become beasts" when fire set off a wild trampling panic at a church supper. At least 10 persons died in the flaming melee.

Police reported at least 227 injured. Of these, 14 still were hospitalized today and one, a man whose name was not given, was reported in critical condition. Authorities checked numerous reports of missing persons but said at 9 a. m. CST that they were reasonably satisfied that all those who were in the building had been accounted for.

The flash fire broke out about 4 p. m. CST Sunday in the quonset-roofed community hall of suburban Brooklyn, Md., as 1,100 men, women, and children were attending a festive oyster roast sponsored by the Catholic Church of St. Rose of Lima.

Lawrence O'Brien, chairman of the arrangement committee for the ill-fated dinner, told of the horrible stampede for safety that ensued: "Men became beasts. I saw men beating women to get to a door or window. Men and women shrieked and screamed and cried."

O'Brien leaped to a table and yelled to the terrified crowd to keep calm, but his voice was drowned out in the frenzied babble of the crowd.

The Rev. Francis Willis, assistant rector of St. Rose of Lima, also made a futile effort to calm the crowd. But the terror that stalked the hall would not be stayed. Many were trampled in the crush for exits. Others jumped, were pushed, or were thrown through windows as flames suddenly enveloped the roof.

There were reports that some of the doors of the hall were not used. But fire officials refused to say, pending an official investigation report, whether they found any doors locked or otherwise barred from use.

Rescue workers at the scene told reporters during the night and early morning that 12 bodies had been found, but Sgt. Thomas Smith of the Maryland state police said later that an official recount showed 10 bodies in the building. Only parts of some bodies were found, and this may have contributed to the apparent error in the earlier count.

Smith, investigating the fire for the state police, said he believes the holocaust was caused by a layer of gas escaping into the space between the ceiling and the rounded roof of the quonset building. When the gas ignited, the building quickly turned into an inferno.

Coroner Gustave Flaubert said all the bodies recovered Sunday night were women. Relatives of women whom the police count revealed to be missing were asked to view the bodies for possible identification.

Howard C. Selig, a cook, said a small fire broke out and while several men tried to put out the flames, people began filling quietly out of the building.

"Then the fire suddenly spread," Selig said. "Panic developed. It was like a stampede. People were crushed up against the walls and were trampled under foot. People started throwing each other out windows, smashing windows and jumping out windows."

Hillsides a Sea of White as White-Robed Indians Gather to Hear Graham

By GEORGE BURNHAM
Chattanooga News-Free Press Staff Writer

KOTTAYAM, India — People who gathered to hear Christ preach the Sermon on the Mount must have looked something like the thousands who sat on the hillsides at Kottayam to hear Billy Graham. This is not an attempt to compare the two speakers. The people are the story.

Billy stood on a platform in the center of a clearing. People covered the hillsides all around him. Almost as far as the eye could see it was a sea of white, dotted with splashes of color, that rose

H. L. Mencken, Caustic Critic, Dies at Age 75

BALTIMORE (U.P.)—H. L. Mencken, the caustic critic of "Boobus Americanus," a celebrated newspaperman and a noted language scholar, died early Sunday of a heart seizure.

Mencken was stricken in his sleep and died peacefully at the Baltimore home he shared with his brother, August.

The manner of his death contrasted sharply with his life as a literary "disturber of the peace." From his pen as newspaperman, essayist and magazine editor flowed for more than a quarter of a century a stream of vitriolic comment about both sacred and profane aspects of U. S. life that both delighted and enraged readers.

He spared nothing — even religion and democracy. But his favorite targets were bigots, prudes, misguided idealists, and mediocrities. Some typical comments: "The state of Arkansas — 'I didn't make the state of Arkansas the butt of ridicule. God did it.'"

Politicians — "A good one is quite as unthinkable as an honest burglar."

Religions — "All great religions have to admit a dilution of agnosticism. It is only the savage, whether of the African bush or the American gospel tent, who pretends to know the will and intent of God exactly and completely."

Mencken regarded nothing — except possibly German beer and Beethoven — as above criticism.

Many of his jibes were contained in essays he wrote as co-editor with drama critic George Jean Nathan of the magazine "Smart Set." Later, in 1924, he continued his lambasts as editor of the old American Mercury.

Howell Rites at West Frankfort Wednesday

The body of J. Will Howell, former prominent business man of West Frankfort who died Thursday in Tucson, Ariz., arrived in West Frankfort today and after 2 p. m. Tuesday will lie in state at the home of the son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. L. Gobel Patton, 1401 East Elm street in West Frankfort. The funeral will be Wednesday at 2 p. m. at the West Frankfort Second Baptist church.

and fell with the levels of the hills. The women were dressed in their billowing white robes and the men attired in loose fitting clothes that defy description. It appears that men get tangled up in a sheet while getting out of bed and then wear it that way the rest of the day. Americans would be more comfortable if they dressed like the people of India. They dress for weather, not to impress people.

The listeners had come from miles around. They were of all ages — young boys who couldn't sit still, teen-agers whose eyes followed shapely Indian girls, mothers with little children, aging parents whose faces reflected hard years of working fields. There were Jacobites with long beards.

They had heard of this outstanding young preacher from the other side of the world and had been planning for many months to hear him speak. It was a mood of expectancy as they looked toward the platform.

Billy began to speak through a Malay interpreter. A few days before it was in Tamil and Telugu. He said, "God is going to do big things at these meetings in Southern India. He is not going to do them because I am a great preacher. He is going to do these big things because Christians in India and your friends around the world have been praying. God answers prayers."

"The message I am going to preach is 2,000 years old, but it is as modern as tomorrow's newspaper. I will preach Jesus and Him crucified."

And that is what he preached — with simplicity, conviction and power. It touched a lot of people in a lot of different ways. Preachers were brought together in a spirit of unity never before known in India. Missionaries from abroad said they were going back to their remote outposts with new zeal and a sense of urgency. Non-Christians responded by the thousands to the message of peace for the present and hope for the future.

"Only God could have done this," Billy commented. His thoughts, too, had drifted back to the Sermon on the Mount as he looked out over more than 30,000 people. Christ could not be seen but many said they had felt His presence.

Neff Attends Forestry Meeting

Lawrence P. Neff of Harrisburg, supervisor of the Shawnee National Forest, is attending a conference of supervisors in the north central states which opened today in Milwaukee.

Heading the conference is Regional Forester H. Dean Cochran. Discussion leaders will include W. G. McGinnies, director of the Central States Forest experiment station at Columbus, and M. B. Dickerman of St. Paul, director of the Lake States Forest Experiment station.

The meeting this year will pay particular attention to the role the region's national forests play as key watersheds on the headwaters of the Mississippi and Ohio rivers.

Banker and Son Found Fatally Shot

ROCKFORD, Ill. (U.P.) — Police scheduled an autopsy and a talk today in an attempt to solve the riddle of the fatal shooting of a prominent Rockford banker and his son.

George H. Arnold, 59, and his 26-year-old son, Robert, were found shot to death in their garage Sunday.

Coroner Collins Y. Sundberg scheduled an autopsy while State's Atty. Robert R. Canfield hoped to question the widow, Mrs. Rose Michaels Arnold.

It was Mrs. Arnold who found the bodies sprawled on the garage floor, a .32 caliber pistol between them. Three bullet holes were found in the son's head while the elder Arnold had been shot once in the right temple, police said.

Police found a note in Arnold's pocket. The note, in Robert's handwriting, said: "Maw, I'm sorry for everything. Bob."

Police said there was no immediate indication as to the meaning of the note and said that was one of the points that might be cleared up in the talk with Mrs. Arnold.

Arnold was vice president and trust officer of the Illinois National Bank and Trust Co. here for the past 23 years. Formerly he had been with the Harris Trust and Savings Bank in Chicago.

Arnold had been in good health as far as was known and worked at the bank as usual Saturday.

The son, who formerly attended Northwestern University, returned home recently after being discharged from the Navy.

VFW, Legion Collect $550 in Polio Pitch; Two Drives Total $1232

The "Pitch for Polio" conducted Saturday by the VFW and American Legion posts of Harrisburg brought in $550.09 for the March of Dimes campaign.

The two veterans organizations held a "pitch" two weeks ago and collected $682.75, making a total of $1,232.84 received for the March of Dimes through the activities of the Legion and VFW.

Tubs were placed at the intersection of Main and Poplar streets on the square and at the intersections of Routes 13 and 145 and manned by veterans throughout the day, despite the inclement weather.

Dorrisville Students Collect $145 for March of Dimes

The pupils of the Dorrisville grade school collected a total of $145.08 for the March of Dimes. Each grade had the following amounts: eighth grade, 9.40; seventh grade, 8.62; sixth grade, 12.10; fifth grade, 21.75; fourth grade, 22.85; third grade, 25.00; second grade, 19.15; first grade, 14.81; and kindergarten, 11.30. The total amount averaged 50 cents per pupil.

Pilot Lands at Paris After Trans-Atlantic Flight

Says He is Too Tired to Continue Attempt to Cairo

PARIS (U.P.)—Airline Capt. William Judd landed at a suburban Paris airport early today after a solo trans-Atlantic flight from New York, too tired to continue his bid for a non-stop long distance record to Cairo.

The 40-year-old Judd took off from Westchester County Airport at White Plains, N. Y., at 7:31 a. m. CST Sunday. He landed at the nearby Toussieu-Noble Airport at 2:45 p. m. (7:45 a. m. CST) today. He spent an elapsed time of 24 hours and 14 minutes in the air.

Originally, he planned to try for a long distance record flight of 6,000 miles between New York and Cairo. Then, while over England, he said he had changed his plans and decided to land in France.

"I had to work too hard during the trip and decided it was safer to land even though I probably had enough gas to go on to Rome," he said.

Judd is a Trans World Airlines pilot. He is stationed in Cairo, from where he flies TWA Constellation to India and Europe. He had flown the Atlantic 120 times before as a pilot, and said he made this trip because it was the easiest way to get his small plane to Egypt.

Judd's plane, the "Star of the Red Sea," is a 1,650-pound Cessna civilian sports plane. He loaded it up with a bag of oranges and a box of raisins and took off from the ice-coated Westchester Airport runway in a freezing drizzle.

His plane was so heavily loaded with fuel for the record attempt that the tires were pressed flat and the undercarriage spread.

Beneficial Rains Here Over Weekend Total .81 Inch

Beneficial precipitation that came over the week-end tapered off with freezing rains and a touch of snow early today that made streets, roads and sidewalks slippery until the sun came out.

The precipitation, as reported by Harrison Kibler, who records the fall at the Pankey branch pumping station gauge, showed a total of .81 inch Saturday and Sunday. The Saturday measurement was .27, yesterday's .54.

Amos Doom, water and sewer department superintendent, said that although some water came down the creek, it was not good enough to pump into the city reservoirs, having too much hardness and acid content.

He said that probably tomorrow the Congo pump, up Middle Fork creek from the reservoirs, will be started.

Doom estimated there was a three months supply of water in the standby reservoirs.

Marine Resists Blistered Feet After 100-Mile Hike to Aid March of Dimes

By ROBERT L. ULLRICH
United Press Staff Correspondent
CARBONDALE, Ill. (U.P.) — Staff Sgt. Phillip E. Hobbs rested his feet today as March of Dimes committees totaled up donations brought in last week by his six-day hike of 100 miles or more.

Hobbs, a 30-year-old Marine combat veteran of two wars, finished his private war against polio here Saturday afternoon as darkness fell.

The last leg of his march — 20 miles from Du Quoin — started in a cold drizzle and by the time he arrived here the tall Marine was footsore, weary and rainsoaked.

"I'm mighty tired," he said, "and I guess my blisters have blisters."

Starts Week Ago
Hobbs started in Murphysboro a week ago today. Before he was through he hiked through Carbondale, Carverville, Colp, Herrin, Marion, Johnston City, West Frankfort, Benton, Christopher, Du Quoin and back here.

Along the way volunteers from veterans groups, service clubs and polio fund drive committees accompanied him for short stretches to collect donations from motorists met on the highways.

Hobbs did not set a definite goal for donations when he started but

AEC Develops Brand New Weapons; To Begin Tests On A-Engines for Aircraft

WASHINGTON (U.P.) — The Atomic Energy Commission said today it is developing several brand new weapons which "will strengthen materially the defenses of this nation and the free world."

It also disclosed for the first time that tests have started in Idaho on a stationary forerunner of atomic engines for aircraft.

And construction of a test power plant big enough for aircraft carriers will start in the spring.

With production of nuclear weapons at the highest level in history, the AEC reported "several important" expansions of the far-flung plants where atomic and hydrogen bombs and warheads are developed and manufactured.

The commission made these disclosures in a semi-annual report to Congress on the gigantic project for which taxpayers have put up $14,400,000,000 since its birth in World War II. The AEC said output is up all along the line from ore to finished weapons. Civilian and military projects are booming.

Weapons Stockpile Grows
With new H-bomb tests scheduled for this spring in the Pacific, the AEC said it is speeding the stockpiling of weapons made possible by previous tests.

It said last spring's tests in Nevada "opened several new and promising avenues for weapons research and development" which are being followed up "on an expedited basis."

The AEC did not identify the new weapons types which it said will "strengthen materially the defenses" of the free world. But they are believed to include atomic warheads of anti-aircraft and other special-purpose guided missiles.

In its last semi-annual report six months ago, the commission said it was stockpiling weapons of the kind exploded in the 1954 H-bomb tests.

Since then, today's report said, "several important additions" have been started or completed at many of the AEC's widely-separated weapons plants and laboratories.

Power Plants Progress
The commission said development of atomic plants for industrial and military power and for naval and aircraft propulsion "made significant progress" in the last half of 1955. In that period the AEC spent $62,300,000 on such work.

Rejection of Soviet Offer Pleases West

LONDON (U.P.)—Western Europe today praised President Eisenhower's rejection of Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin's offer of a 20-year peace treaty with the United States. Moscow remained silent.

Though little official comment was forthcoming from the capitals of free Europe, there was uncoiled satisfaction with the manner in which the President dealt with a maneuver most Europeans thought was designed to split the Anglo-American alliance.

Diplomatic observers in Moscow said Russia probably realized in advance that Mr. Eisenhower would reject the pact. The Bulgarian letter appeared in the Soviet press, but the President's reply had not yet been published.

Moscow diplomats thought the Russian offer was a shrewd move to win more friendship in the more important Asian countries at expense of the United States — to make it appear the United States was rejecting a bona fide peace offer.

A hint that came Saturday night in Prague when Soviet Foreign Minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov and East German Deputy Premier Walter Ulbricht said they could not understand how anyone could refuse a treaty of friendship.

Communist China today gave official support to the Bulgarian proposal.

Western Germany apparently was most pleased with President Eisenhower's move since he stressed German unity as the key to a cold war settlement.

There was growing belief in Bonn the talks between Mr. Eisenhower and British Prime Minister Anthony Eden might result in an appeal to Russia to help unite Germany as a proof of its peaceful intentions.

The belief was prevalent in Bonn that the Soviet had acted to try to split the United States from its allies. Similar views were expressed in London, Rome, Scandinavia and in neutral Switzerland.

Set Dates for Township, County Spelling Matches

Dates for the township and county spelling matches will be held earlier than originally scheduled in Saline county because of an early date for the Tri-State Spelling Bee at Evansville, C. Raymond Gardner, county superintendent of schools, announced today.

The township matches will be held March 9 and the county meet, at which township winners will compete, will be held at Horace Mann school in Harrisburg March 17. The Tri-State Bee will be held March 23.

The winner of the Evansville matches, sponsored by the Evansville Press, will represent the Tri-State in the National Spelling Bee in Washington, D. C., May 14-19.

Room champions from Grades 2 through 8 at the approximately 34 schools which will compete will vie for township honors. These township champs of each room then will participate for the county championship of each grade. Then the winners of the upper grades will spell for the honor of representing the county at Evansville.

Dulles Greet Statesman Upon Arrival

Prime Minister Praises President's Reply to Bulganin

WASHINGTON (U.P.)—British Prime Minister Sir Anthony Eden arrived here today to begin a new and "joint" Anglo-American effort to find a just peace for the world.

The dapper English statesman, accompanied by his foreign minister, Selwyn Lloyd, landed here in Mr. Eisenhower's government plane, Columbine III. They flew here from New York, where they arrived by ship earlier this morning.

Eden told Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, who headed the official welcoming delegation, that the two-power meeting with President Eisenhower could not be more timely in view of recent international developments. He also expressed pleasure that the President was well enough to make the three-day meeting possible.

Both Dulles and Eden exchanged assurances of a desire for freedom and a just peace in the world.

After the airport greeting, the visiting dignitaries were whisked to Blair House, the government guest house across Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House. They will stay there during part of their visit.

They get down to business this afternoon. Before that Mr. Eisenhower, Sir Anthony, Lloyd and Dulles had lunch at the White House.

At a news conference on arrival in New York, Eden described as "admirable" Mr. Eisenhower's weekend reply rejecting Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin's proposal for a mutual friendship treaty.

"The President informed us of Marshal Bulganin's letter and of his reply which I thought admirable," Eden said in answer to a question.

"If he thought the Bulganin-Eisenhower exchange would improve international relations, Eden said he thought world tension was 'about normal.'"

"We think this is a timely moment for a constructive effort by our two countries," he said. "Whenever we are together in foreign policy and purpose that is the best contribution to peace."

In a brief shipboard news conference, Eden made these quick points:

Middle-East: "I am anxious to make progress on the Middle Eastern problem..." He said Israel's request for American arms was a matter for Washington to decide.

Formosa: "Our policy and position on Formosa was laid down some time ago and it has not changed."

H-Bomb: "I don't want to make an off-the-cuff policy on H-bombs. I have had much to say about that in the past and I may have more to say after our conference has finished."

Germany: "We are in favor of unification of Germany. We have not changed our policy nor I think have you."

Colonialism: Eden said it would be a "good idea" if there could be a joint Anglo-American statement on colonialism after the Washington talks.

The prime minister's meeting with Mr. Eisenhower will be their first since last summer's Big Four "summit" meeting at Geneva, Switzerland.

Laying It On the Line

Editorial — BY BRUCE BISSAT
President Eisenhower, who has managed some impressive political successes by breaking the standard political rules, now flouts the one that says you've got to offer the voters a tax cut in an election year.

It would have been quite easy for the President, in his State of the Union message, to have held out some hope of a cut by talking in cheerfully vague generalities. This he declined to do.

In effect he went over the heads of lawmakers who may soon be pressing for some sort of tax reduction, appealing to the good sense of the American people as he explained why he felt a cut was inadvisable at this time.

To begin with, Eisenhower obviously believes that if the country can't balance its federal budget in a time of such high prosperity it probably never will. He wants the budget balanced.

Originally, hopes of a tax slash were higher because federal expenses for the coming year were expected to be lower. But upward revisions in defense and foreign aid items altered the picture.

Similarly, the President thinks prosperous times are right for making at least a small dent in the huge national debt. If not then, when?

"Under conditions of high peacetime prosperity, such as now exist," said the President, "we can never justify going further into debt to give ourselves a tax cut at the expense of our children."

Eisenhower would be happy, of course, to see a tax cut if the preconditions of a balanced budget and reduced federal debt could be met this year. But the likelihood of that isn't too strong.

In addition to heavier foreign aid and defense commitments, he wants Congress to approve some ambitious plans for improving the farmer's lot and expanding and updating the nation's school and highway systems. These programs, some of which he will outline in more detail later, will cost a good deal.

Some reaction in Congress suggests the pressures for a tax cut may surmount the President's resistance.

Even faithful GOP leaders like Rep. Joseph W. Martin of Massachusetts think he may have left the door open to reduction later. In a sense he did, but only in the sense that he would favor it if his conditions were fulfilled.

Congress might not be so fussy, however. It has voted or permitted tax cuts before when the budget was unbalanced. It could again.

Furthermore, the lawmakers might well decide to deny the President some of the funds he seeks, particularly for foreign aid and similar bulky items. That way the budget might be brought into balance at a lower level.

In any event, the President has faced the fiscal issue squarely. Now we'll see how Congress faces it.

Rejoicing Leavened With Apprehension

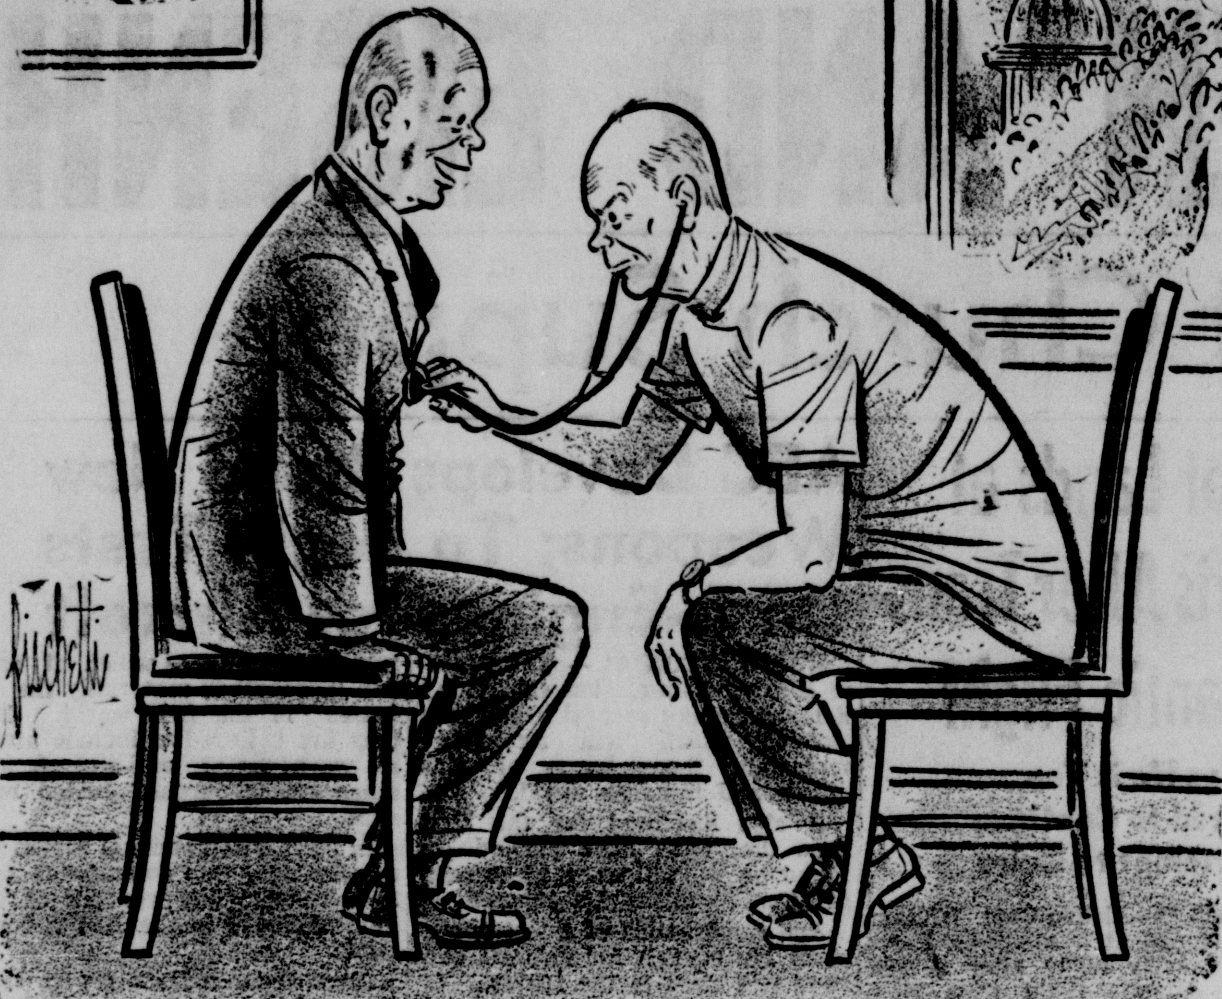

When Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of West Germany passed his 80th birthday, it was a reminder to the free world on at least two counts.

First of all, in the interests of Western solidarity, we are extremely fortunate that a man of Adenauer's integrity, prestige, forcefulness and dedication to European unity should have been fit so long to remain at the helm in Germany.

But, secondly, we must realize the odds are against his leading the Bonn government for very much longer. His death or retirement would be bound to have serious repercussions in the vital German sector of the Cold War.

Reports have it that a number of qualified Germans now working as Adenauer's lieutenants would be on hand to take over. But they could not command his prestige at the outset, if ever. And there is no way of foreseeing what political shifts of consequence might follow Adenauer's departure from the scene.

"Well—What Do You Think?"

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says: Republicans Bawl Out Dulles Worse Than Democrats; They Balk At His Appointment Of Harvard Professor; Anonymous Congressman Had To Put Up Money For Dr. Salk's Medal.

WASHINGTON. — Though it's the Democrats who have been lambasting Secretary of State Dulles publicly, certain Republicans have been even more vitriolic privately. Two top Republican senators, Bridges of New Hampshire and Knowland of California, were so vigorous during a closed-door luncheon on Capitol Hill that at one point Dulles complained:

"I made the decision. I am secretary of state."

The argument was over Robert R. Bowie, a Harvard professor and a Republican, whom Dulles wants to promote to be assistant secretary of state. Bowie was appointed by the Eisenhower administration.

At first his name was sent to the Senate for confirmation listed as a resident of Maryland. Bowie is an old Maryland name, and a town in that state is named for the family. Then Dulles discovered that he would have the opposition of the two Republican senators from Maryland, Butler and Beale, so Bowie's name was hastily withdrawn, then sent back to the Senate as a resident of Massachusetts.

Bowie used to live at Cambridge, Mass., while teaching at Harvard, and kindly Senator Saltonstall of Massachusetts was willing to back him.

Not, however, Bridges and Knowland. This geographic switcheroo only made them madder. Summoning the secretary of state to Knowland's office for lunch, they indicated that they were in anything but agreement with Eisenhower's description of Dulles as the "best secretary of state I have ever known."

A MISERABLE LUNCH

"What's the use of making an agreement with us about clearing appointments if you don't intend to keep them?" Bridges asked.

"Well, I already had a prior commitment," Dulles begged off.

"I don't see how you can appoint a man who holds views about foreign policy which are contrary to your own and to those of the President," remarked Knowland.

He referred to Bowie's view that the United States should recognize Red China—if she changes her tactics and if she returns American prisoners—in an effort to drive a wedge between Red China and Russia.

Dulles admitted that Bowie's views did not entirely coincide with his own—though, privately, senators doubt this is true. They remember how Dulles' law partner, Arthur Dean, definitely favored recognition of Red China, and how Dulles in a private press meeting early in the Eisenhower administration indicated that recognition of Red China was eventually necessary.

"His duties," explained the secretary of state, referring to Bowie, "won't be essentially different from what he is doing today." Finally, when Bridges and Knowland were adamant and asked that the nomination be withdrawn, Dulles flared up:

"I made the decision. I am the secretary of state."

"Your term as secretary of state runs for a year," countered Bridges. "I am in the Senate for five years definitely and I may be here longer. We, as senators, have responsibilities and intend to live up to them."

Dulles went back to his desk at the State Department. "I've had a very miserable lunch up there at the Capitol," he told friends.

HARD-WON MEDAL

A lot of sweat has gone into the gold medal which Health, Education, and Welfare Secretary Marion Folsom presented to Dr. Jonas Salk last week.

First, the medal almost died aborning after it was suggested by Rep. Irwin Davidson (D., N. Y.). Because, while Congress okayed the idea, it then forgot to appropriate the $2,500 needed to pay an artist and reimburse the Treasury for the minting.

Worried that Dr. Salk might not get his medal, Representative Davidson buttonholed Treasury Secretary George Humphrey.

"Look here," said the congressman, a prominent Manhattan attorney. "It would be a heck of a thing if we didn't get that medal awarded in time for the March of Dimes this January. How about letting me put up the $2,500?"

Humphrey, however, refused, insisting that there was no provision in the law permitting a private individual to lend money to the U. S. Treasury.

With the March of Dimes fast approaching and with a congressional appropriation impossible because Congress was out of session, Davidson went into a huddle with Basil O'Connor of the Polio Foundation. Together they came up with an idea that Humphrey finally decided was legal.

Davidson is still hoping for an appropriation bill, and if one is passed the "anonymous citizen" will get his $2,500 back. In that case the $2,500 will go to the March of Dimes.

Note—At a White House huddle it was decided to let HEW Secretary Folsom present the medal, rather than Ike or Humphrey. It was hoped this would dissipate some of the ill will aroused by HEW last spring when Oveta Culp Hobby, then secretary, muffed up the Salk vaccine distribution problem.

CAPITOL NEWS CAPSULES

Jet-Engine Snafu — The General Accounting Office has prepared a detailed accounting of government expenses which will be released by Congress at the end of the month. One of the most interesting items in this report concerns the over-procurement of jet engines. The GAO report claims that one contract alone was cut back, saving the taxpayers between $40 and $60 million. Another $10 million worth of jet engines were also canceled. These engines had already become out of date even before they were scheduled for production.

Russian Farm Production—The American embassy has warned that Russia will be producing more grain than the United States by 1960 under the new Soviet five-year plan. The Russians are reported to be seriously about their drive to boost farm production, even if they have to move 100,000 more factory workers into the fields. The Russians are concentrating on tractor production in order to mechanize all farms and by 1960 will be turning out 325,000 tractors a year — three times as many as Britain.

Better Job Offers for SIU Graduates

CARBONDALE, Ill. — More and better paying positions are being offered Southern Illinois University graduates, according to the 1955 annual report issued by Dr. Roy R. Bryant, director of SIU's Placement Service.

The average annual salary paid the 1955 SIU graduate with technical training who entered business or industry was $4,446, the first time the starting pay has passed the $4,000 mark.

Business and industrial job opportunities listed at Southern last year showed a 23 per cent increase over 1954, Bryant revealed, while the number of vacancies listed by schools jumped 61 per cent.

Interviewers from 12 states and Japan came to the SIU Placement Office to talk with last year's graduates, who accepted business and industrial job opportunities in 11 states, 24 Illinois counties and one foreign country. Those who accepted teaching positions went to 17 states, 55 Illinois counties and two foreign countries.

"Many of the employers who visited the campus were just as interested in interviewing graduates from the Vocational-Technical Institute as they were in interviewing candidates for a bachelor's or master's degree," Bryant said.

Some of the best fields in business for SIU graduates, according to Bryant, are accounting, sales, insurance, and retailing. Engineering leads the field in industry.

Because many firms have trainee programs at a lower salary scale for new employees and because of commissions, expense accounts and other benefits, the average figure listed may not give a true salary picture for graduates going into business and industry, Bryant said.

Although beginning salaries paid SIU graduates who enter the teaching field have increased each year since 1950, they still remain lower than those received by graduates who enter business or industry, the report states.

Bryant said the teacher shortage may be greater in the elementary field than in the secondary field. The 8,894 elementary vacancies reported last year represent a 72 per cent hike over 1954, while the 5,357 high school vacancies reported are only a 53 per cent increase.

In addition, the average annual salary paid the 1955 elementary major increased $92 over the previous year while the annual salary of the 1955 secondary major dropped $5.

Although 339 of Southern's graduates last year entered the teaching field, only 148 of these were new to the profession.

Of all the teaching vacancies listed at SIU, only 7.6 per cent came from the lower 31 counties of Illinois. Yet of the 1955 SIU graduates teaching school this year, 229, or nearly 68 per cent, accepted teaching positions in the lower 31 counties.

The services of the SIU Placement Office are available without charge to SIU undergraduates, degree candidates and alumni, and to employers seeking qualified candidates. This includes those who receive associate degrees and certificates from the Division of Technical and Adult Education.

Powdery Snow Covers Southern, Central Illinois

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — A blanket of powdery snow three to five inches deep today covered central and southern Illinois.

The Weather Bureau said there was little or no snow north of Peoria. Weather Bureau reports showed three inches at Springfield, Quincy, Rantoul, and Belleville, and five inches at St. Louis, Vandalia and some southern Illinois points.

The State Highway Division reported highways south of a line through Keokuk, Iowa, Peoria and Joliet were hazardous because of snow. The division said roads in the northern one-third of this area were bare with occasional slippery spots of packed snow.

The southern two-thirds of this area were covered with packed snow and ice causing bad driving conditions, the division said.

State highways north of the Keokuk, Peoria, Joliet line were reported normal.

In southwestern and southern Illinois some schools closed for the day because buses could not get over their routes.

Clothier Finds Men Growing, Girls Shrink

NEW YORK—One chain of clothing stores has come out with a disquieting thought—the men may be giants and the women midgets by 1975.
The chain (Robert Hall), which sells both men's and women's clothing, reported that more and more men buy larger size suits and other apparel; more women wear smaller dresses. It said the average men's size sold in its 205 stores before World War II was 38, now it's 40 and 42. Its factories used

Two Independent Cage Games Tuesday Night To Aid March of Dimes

Two good independent basketball games are on tap for Davenport gym Tuesday night. All receipts will go to the March of Dimes fund.

In the night's opener the Harrisburg Dairy Brands will meet Herrin and the nightcap will feature the Colored Vagabonds vs. Johnston City.

The Vagabonds include Bobby Spottsville and Newsom, a couple of former Shawneetown high school stars, in the lineup.

There will be no admission charged, but donations will be accepted. Co-sponsoring the game are the two American Legion posts in Harrisburg—Post 167 and the Negro Post 850.

Russia Wins Fourth Medal in Olympic Games

CORTINA, Italy—Russia, beaten in the 15-kilometer cross country ski race by Norway's Hallgeir Brenden, came back to score its third straight Olympic speed skating triumph today when two of its ice phantoms lowered the world 1,500-meter record.

Evgeniy Grishin and Yuriy Mikhailov each skated the 1,500-meter distance in 2 minutes, 8.6 seconds to share first-place in the event. Each will win an Olympic gold medal. This was the fourth winter games championship won by Russia, which has an overwhelming lead in the unofficial team standings.

Earlier in the day, Brenden, a 27-year-old Norwegian farmer, had smashed the Soviet skiers' bid for cross country supremacy by winning the 15-kilometer event in a snowstorm.

Renee Colliard, a 22-year-old Swiss girl, was unofficially declared winner of the women's special slalom ski race. All times in the event awaited an official recheck.

Second Skating Record

This was the second world speed skating record set during the 1956 Olympic games by Grishin. The 28-year-old jeweler lowered the world 500-meter mark in winning that event on Saturday.

Grishin had held the listed world record of 2:09.8 for the 1,500-meter event set in Russia last year, but Mikhailov had broken that with a 2:09.1 clocking at Davos, Switzerland, Jan. 20.

The best Yank showing was by Pat McNamara of Minneapolis, who skated the distance faster than any American ever had done, and still placed only 20th. His time was 2:15.2.

Johnny Werket of Minneapolis placed 25th in 2:16.1; Gene Sandvig of Minneapolis was 30th in 2:17.1; and Don McDermott of Englewood Cliffs, N. J., was 37th in 2:18.6.

The United States defeated Germany, 7-2, today in the Olympic ice hockey tournament.

Andrea Mead Lawrence of Parshall, Colo., who won two gold medals in the 1952 winter games, had misfortune today on both her runs down the 456-meter (about 1,500 feet) slalom course and failed a second time in a bid for a 1956 title.

The 23-year-old ski star hit the base of a gate with her ski pole and nearly fell on the first run. Mrs. Lawrence also missed a gate on her second run and had to climb back, losing 20 seconds.

Mrs. Lawrence, now a mother of three children, finished in a tie for fourth place in the women's giant slalom race on Friday.

Miss Colliard, a pretty pharmacy student from Geneva, made her runs in 55.6 and 56.7 seconds to win by a wide margin in the combined time of 1:52.3. Her times were the fastest for each run. A field of 49 women competed.

Pistons Down Warriors, 99-85

By United Press
It took the Fort Wayne Pistons a long time to get rolling, but they're really in high gear now and moving quickly away from the field in the Western Division of the National Basketball Assn.

The Pistons racked up their seventh straight victory Sunday night by downing the Philadelphia Warriors, 99-85, in Fort Wayne. And now the Pistons boast a much bigger lead in the West—6-1-0 games.

Illinois Beats DePaul, 80-66, After 12-Day Layoff; Face Minnesota Five Tonight

CHICAGO—Illinois, showing signs of rust and raggedness in creaking by DePaul for its 10th straight victory, returns to the conference war tonight at Minnesota in quest of No. 11.

The Illini didn't look like the nation's third best basketball team in downing an outmanned DePaul five, 80-66, Saturday night. It looked for awhile, in fact, like Ron Sobieszozyk would almost single-handedly upset the Illini.

It was Illinois' first game after a 12-day break for semester exams and Harry Combes' boys appeared to still be thinking of their lessons as DePaul shot into an early 11-point lead. The lead changed hands 11 times before Illinois' offense began functioning efficiently with about 10 minutes of the game left.

If Sobieszozyk, who led the Deons with 29 points, had had any help from his teammates, DePaul might easily have sprung one of its famous upsets.

Ridley Still Out
Illinois, however, was also minus its little playmaking guard, Bill Ridley, who sat out the game with an injured knee. Combes was probably saving Ridley, the Big Ten's fourth leading scorer, for Minnesota, where the Illini will be after their fifth straight conference win.

The Gophers showed signs of new life Saturday in whipping Northwestern, 83-67, for their second conference triumph in five games.

Bill Simonovich, 6-11 center, pumped in 17 points in his best performance of the season. Jed Dommeyer with 21 points and Dave Tucker with 19 outscored Simonovich, but it was the huge 280-pounder's rebounding and early hook shots that sent the Wildcats sprawling to their fifth straight conference defeat.

If Simonovich can prove a match for George BonSalle, Illinois' rangy pivotman, the Gophers could surprise the Illini. BonSalle and Paul Judson paced Illinois with 20 points each against DePaul. BonSalle is also among the top ten conference scorers with an average of 20.2.

Purdue travels to Northwestern in the only other Big Ten game tonight in search of its fifth victory in eight games. The Boilers, who defeated the Wildcats earlier, 68-54, would move into third place with a victory.

Michigan State edged Ohio State, 94-91, in the only other Big Ten game played Saturday. It was

Wildcats Come From Behind to Beat Bull Dogs; Eldorado Third

The Carrier Mills Wildcats today held the Saline county basketball championship for the second time in the past three years.

Coach Claude Shelton's team, which won the first annual meet in 1954, defeated the Harrisburg Bull Dogs, 64 to 55, to cop the title at the third annual affair at Davenport gymnasium Saturday night.

The Wildcats beat Galatia Friday night before coming from behind to trip Harrisburg. The Bull Dogs of Coach Lawrence Cofield had defeated Eldorado for its right to enter the finals against Carrier Mills. In the game for third place Eldorado won handily over Galatia, 81 to 53.

Tight Defense

The Bull Dogs played a fine basketball game before bowing, which in itself is a tribute to the play of the winners.

It was a far cry from the last meeting of the two teams, when Carrier Mills won, 100 to 49. By putting up a tight defense on Oliver Rollins, the scoring ace of this area, the Bull Dogs held the big Wildcat to 24 points, a big total for most players but below par for Rollins. He had 72 points for the tournament.

With Rollins being guarded closely, other Carrier Mills players came through with points. Jim Reid had 14 for Wildcat runner-up honors.

For Harrisburg Wayne Stone was high with 20 points and he fouled out five and a half minutes before the game ended. Stone had been the clutch shooter, making the baskets the locals had to have before he left the game. Ronnie Williams was next for the locals with 18.

Score Tied at Half

Harrisburg, playing a deliberate game on offense, was making its baskets as the Bull Dogs ran up a 16-8 lead at the outset. Carrier Mills started closing the gap on strictly a battle of Robin Freeman vs. Julius McCoy.

Freeman came within one point of the conference's individual scoring mark with 46 points on 16 field goals and 14 out of 14 free throw attempts, but it wasn't enough to give his Buckeyes victory. He fouled out with 21 seconds left in the game.

McCoy scored 40 points to up his conference average to 23.3 in six games, second only to Freeman's 33.2.
Six Big Ten teams play conference tilts Saturday. Indiana is at Ohio State in the afternoon television game. Purdue hosts Minnesota and Wisconsin travels to Northwestern.

Four non-conference games are scheduled this week. Indiana hosts state rival Notre Dame Tuesday. Michigan State travels to Detroit Wednesday, and Iowa entertains Wichita and Washington of St. Louis is at Michigan on Saturday.

Dons Overcome Stall, 33-24, For 40th Win

By United Press
National champion San Francisco, which "walked" to a new major-college record of 40 straight victories, promised "no letdown" today as it drove toward the all-time all-college record of 55 straight triumphs.

The Dons won No. 40 Saturday night when they overcame a freak stall to beat California, 33-24. The historic conquest solidified their hold on the No. 1 national ranking for it came on the same night that arch-rival Dayton was ousted from the unbeaten ranks by Louisville, 66-64, in overtime.

The 40 straight tops the old major-college mark of 39 straight held by Long Island University (1935-36) and Seton Hall (1940-41).

Now the target is the string of 55 wins compiled by Peru (Nebr.) State Teachers from 1921-26, which stands as the small-college and all-college records. San Francisco has 11 more regular season games to play—so an all-conquering career would carry the Dons past this figure in the late stages of the NCAA tournament.

The Dons try to take over the lead in the California Basketball Assn. Tuesday night when they play San Jose St. Then they play Loyola (Calif.) Friday.

Dayton, which had won 14 straight, bowed in a hectic game on its home court as Louisville, ranked No. 10 nationally by the United Press Board of Coaches, pushed its season record to 16-1.

Kentucky, ranked No. 4 nationally, was another major upset victim—bowing to eighth-ranked Vanderbilt, 81-73. The loss was the Wildcats' first in Southeastern conference play and dropped them into third place. Two other teams ranked in the top 20 nationally were upset—16th-ranked Cincinnati by St. Louis, 104-86, and 19th-ranked Marquette by Bradley, 65-57.

Rollins' baskets, though, and the quarter ended 20-15. Rollins made 13 of his points in this period.

In the second quarter Carrier Mills went ahead for the first time at 28-27 with three and a half minutes left. The teams played even the rest of the half, the score being tied at 33-33 at the intermission.

Harrisburg came back strong the third quarter, outscoring Carrier Mills 14 to 9 as Rollins made but two points, and held a 47-42 lead going into the last quarter.

But with five and a half minutes to go Stone fouled Cofield for his fifth foul and Cofield made both free throws to put Carrier Mills ahead at 52-51. The Wildcats kept the lead the rest of the way, although the margin was but 56-53 with a minute and 45 seconds left.

Trophies Awarded

With big Lin Lovellette paying the way, assisted by Bob Watson and Ronnie Stroke, Eldorado took an early lead over Galatia and held it by a comfortable margin all the way. Coach Al Adams' team led 22-11 at the quarter, 40-27 at half time and 62-39 at the end of the third period.

Galatia, coached by Glenn Dunn, had a couple of big scorers—speedy Gene McFarland and center John Tate. McFarland had 24 points, Tate 20.

Following the title game, trophies were awarded for first, second and third places with the fourth place team getting the tournament basketball.

Although the enthusiasm and resulting noise was present, the sportsmanship shown by players, coaches and spectators could not have been better during the entire tournament. The officials commented on the fine conduct by everybody, following the last game.

SIU Drops Two Cage Games Over Week End

CARBONDALE, Ill. Jan. 30—After losing two important road games over the week end, Southern Illinois university's cagers drilled today for a conference contest against second-place Eastern Illinois at Charleston Wednesday night.

Undeclared in league play until this past week end, Southern took it on the chin twice, losing to powerful first-place Western Illinois, 72-57, at Macomb Friday and dropping a 94-81 decision to Illinois Normal at Normal Saturday.

In losing both tilts, SIU ran up against two of their best shooting opponents as Western Illinois hit 48 per cent of its field goal attempts and Illinois Normal 49 per cent.

The league's most outstanding player, Fred Marberry, a 6-3 junior, tipped the scales in favor of Normal Saturday as he scored 30 points and was the leading rebounder. Southern was fairly successful in stopping the other Normal players, but could never control the terrific out-court shooting of Marberry.

After trailing Normal by 16 points (60-44) early in the second half, SIU needed only five minutes to close the gap to only three points (63-60) and finally cut the lead to only two, but couldn't hold the Redbirds after that.

Against Western, Southern played one of the best defensive games of the season, almost out-rebounding the much taller Western crew. SIU tied the score twice midway in the second half, but could never get ahead. Western's 72 points was the Leathernecks' lowest scoring mark of the season.

After defeating Southern Friday, Western ran over Eastern Illinois, 100-83, Saturday to take first place in the conference with a 7-0 record. Western's season record is 20-1.

Gus Doss, East St. Louis, and Seymour Bryson, Quincy, were the big guns for SIU against Western while Joe Johnson, Mt. Vernon, and Warren Talley, Pinckneyville, stood out for Southern in the Normal contest.

Pincks Polish Off Salem, 70-46, To Win Tourney

Herrin Beats West Frankfort, 46-44; Mt. Vernon Wins

By United Press
Pinckneyville, Herrin and Mount Vernon rolled on as the big three of southern Illinois high school basketball play during weekend play.

The Pincks polished off Centralia and Salem in easy fashion to win the Salem tournament for the third time in the past five years. John Daffron got 20 points to lead Duster Thomas' Panthers to the 70-46 win over Salem in the championship game.

Herrin bested West Frankfort 46-44 in a thrilling windup of the Pyramid tournament at Herrin. The host club had eliminated Johnston City Friday night.

Mount Vernon beat Benton Friday night, then drubbed Carbondale 83-66 Saturday.

East St. Louis upset Collinsville 45-43 Saturday night a double-overtime battle at Collinsville. The Flyer victory left Edwardsville in the lead of the tough Southwestern Conference. Collinsville had defeated East St. Louis 62-60 in overtime Dec. 22. The Kahoks had lost only to Edwardsville and Pinckneyville.

Alton, bouncing back from a Friday loss to Edwardsville, outshot McLeansboro 97-81 in a scoring duel. Wood River, which beat Robinson Friday, downed Litchfield 78-69 Saturday.

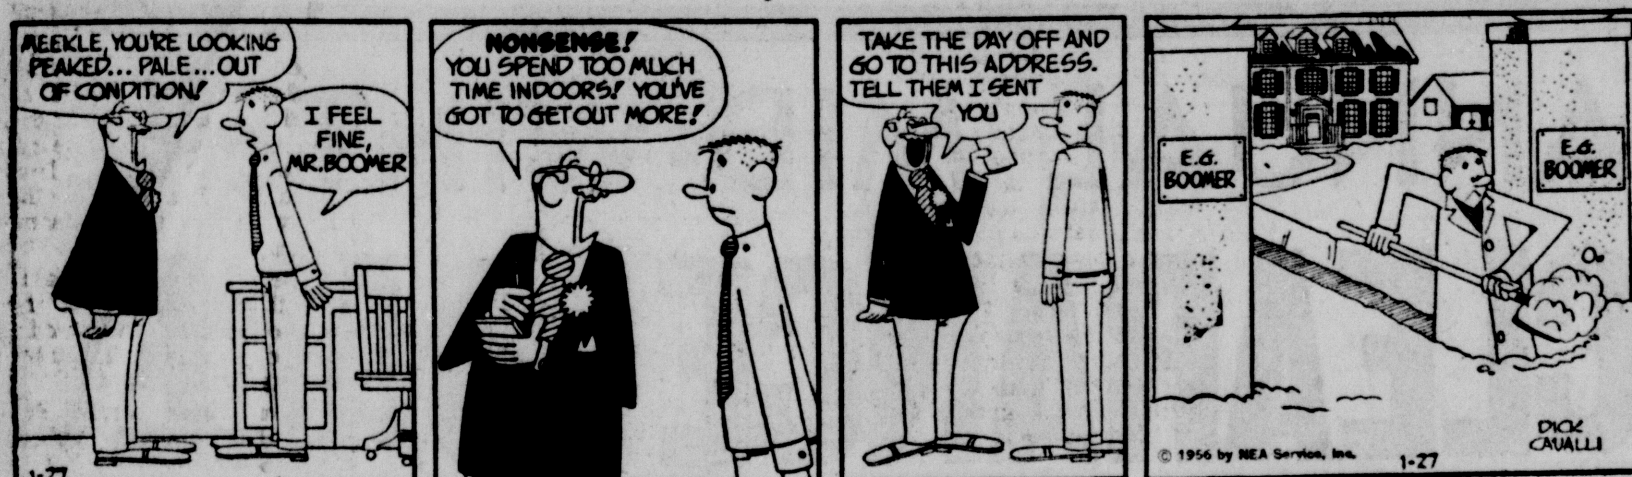

Peoria Central again showed its muscles as tournament time approached. The Lions slapped Streator 63-45 Friday, then knocked over upstart East Peoria 75-65. Washington continued to fade by losing its third in its last five starts, to Peoria Spalding 71-55. Before faltering, the Panthers won 13 straight.

Quincy continued its surge with victories over Springfield and Belleville, the latter by 55-48 Saturday. Calsbury, dumped by Rock Island Friday, conquered Pekin 88-55.

Teen-Age Vandals Wreck School While Seeking Polio Funds

CHICAGO (AP) — Suburban police sought a gang of teen-age vandals today who caused an estimated $2,500 damage to a school while apparently seeking March of Dimes funds.

Meanwhile, Chicago police had another teen-age "wolf gang" beating on their hands.

Vandals attacked the Quin school in Palos Township Saturday night or early Sunday. They flooded part of the school, pushed doors off their hinges, hurled ink bottles through classroom doors and littered papers and books throughout the halls.

The invaders also kidnaped a parakeet, pet of the third grade. Superintendent Dr. J. W. Yarbrough said the vandals apparently were after polio funds collected by the school.

Chicago police continued a roundup of "wolf gang" teen-agers after Richard Ceslok, 18, was beaten severely and two companions hurt less seriously on a West Side street corner Sunday night.

Ceslok's condition was described as not serious at Cook County hospital. Also injured in the fracas were William Hobbs, 14, and Patrick Garrison, 16.

Police said the beating climaxed a teen-age gang battle earlier in the day. The younger boys identified some of their attackers as being members of a gang named "The Nobles."

Seek Mystery Woman, Ex-Con In Bank Robbery

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP)—Police today sought a red-haired mystery woman driving a Cadillac—along with an ex-convict from Dallas—for questioning about robbery of a bank operated by former United States Treasurer Mrs. Georgia Neese Clark Gray.

The ex-convict, Joe Herbert Hoskins, 27, already is charged in the Jan. 2 robbery that netted $2,000. So were two other hoodlums, one of whom was shot to death early Saturday by Mrs. Gray's husband when he broke into their home.

Just who the red-haired woman was, or what connection she has with the case, wasn't definite. She became a suspect when she stopped at a Kansas filling station to telephone and ask about Billy Gene Ross, 23. It was Ross, released only last month from the Texas penitentiary, who was killed when he broke into the Gray home.

In Memoriam
In loving memory of my dear wife and mother, Mary F. Justice, who died one year ago today,
on Jan. 30.
Little we knew with dawn of that morn,
The sorrow it would bring;
The blow was hard, the shock severe,
We little thought the end was so near.
If all the world were ours to give,
We would give it, yes, and more,
To see your smiling face again,
Come shining through this door.
Sometimes it is hard to understand
Why some things have to be,
But in his wisdom God has planned
Beyond our power to see.
God gave us strength to bear it,
And courage to meet the blow,
But what it means to lose you,
This world will never know.
The beautiful things you did for us,
Live in our hearts each day,
And keep you near and dear to us.
Though you have passed away,
Sadly missed by husband and children. *180-1

HOWLING SUCCESS—This rocking chair is a gift to President Eisenhower from Rep. Dewey Short (R-Mo.), left, who says the President could be re-elected without campaigning—sitting in the rocking chair on the front porch of his Gettysburg farmhouse. It was accepted for the President in Washington by his special assistant, Earle D. Chesney, seated, who seems to be giving his hearty approval. The chair was made by a friend of Short in Reeds Spring, Mo., from a special hickory sapling. It has a sunken split hickory seat.

GREAT Circle

BY ROBERT CARSE

XXXVI

"I was laughed out of Boston as a mad-cap," Buchan said. "And in your home town they wouldn't have hide, nor smell of me. They're all clipper-minded. Are ye serious?"

"That I am."

"But I'm broke, mon. I need upwards of $20,000 to put my ship in service."

Jered shifted his weight and looked squarely into Buchan's eyes. "You have nothing to object to about a man's color?"

"So there it is," Buchan said softly. "I thought that you were for certain bound to take command of the clipper McKay has built in Boston. But the color of a man's skin is no matter to me. Be he yella, white or pink, if he's a sailor I'll hire him."

"Then, mister," Jered said, "I'll try to raise your money for you. You shall hear from me by next week's end."

Jered and Kauli were at the Proctor's gate and Phoebe was on the doorstep under the brilliance of the fanlight and Kauli stood back to let Jered go ahead. "Come on in, Kauli," she said. "It's too cold here, even for us."

"Let us three speak alone," Jered said when Kauli had joined them in the hall.

Then, after the fire was lit, he told them of Ivor Buchan and the steamer and the proposition upon which he and Buchan had agreed. Phoebe sat smoothing the folds of her dress. Her hands were held by a peculiar tension and they shook just a bit. "But, Jerry," she said, "you're a man trained in sail. Kauli, too."

"When Kauli and me were aboard of the clipper," Jered said, "her lack of space got to me. Premium cargo only can make such a ship pay. And you must run her hard to do it. And there's not that kind of cargo for every voyage. The steamers will take what the clipper carry and at about the same speed for a good deal less a cargo ton. I'm for the steamers. Buchan convinced me. What I lack is the money to buy in with him."

"He's after sailors?" Kauli said. "He's after you as skipper of his ship," Jered said. "Should you prove yourself competent to him, and if he finds the dollars to put her to sea. The fella is broke."

"I have my $2,000 clear from the Obis," Kauli said. "But I don't buy my way. I sail because I'm a sailor."

"He'd hire you for no other reason," Jered said. "I can rouse up about $15,000 to splice to your two. Then there's the cargo to think of and we'd sit real hunk in the dory should we have a full half interest of the business."

"You haven't forgotten the Crescent," Phoebe said quietly. "Father's determined that you sail her."

"The poor fellow," Phoebe said. She had her nose pressed to the glass of the port deadlight over the bunk. "He can't help but envy you, Jerry, and regret that you hornswoggled him into taking her."

"She rolls," Jered said. "But she sails, too."

That dawn with Puerto Rico purple above the sea on the easterly horizon there was no wind at all. The land birds had ventured out and sat noisy on the upper yards. Jered walked the quarter deck too vexed to talk with the watch officer.

The steamer proceeded at a steady pace. She sounded, the mate said, like a rusty machine shop gone berserk. "But she's overhauling us," Jered said. "Her ensign is at the dip. Respond in kind, mister."

Jered went slowly below into his cabin. He shook Phoebe awake. "There's Kauli's ship," he told her. "We've been passed neat and slick."

"I'm sleepy," Phoebe said. "You're a sailor's wife," Jered said.

Alcoholic Tax Investigator Kills Himself

ROCKFORD, Ill. (UP) — Thomas Scully, 48, an investigator for the alcoholic tax unit of the Internal Revenue Bureau, was found shot to death at his home today, and police said it was suicide.

The body was found by William La Valley, also an employee of the alcoholic tax unit, and an overnight guest at the Scully home.

La Valley told police that he and Scully were to have driven today to Chicago, where Scully had an appointment with his superiors. La Valley said that when he awakened he found a note from Scully, saying that he planned to kill himself, that his body would be found in a shed at the rear of his house, and that La Valley should notify police.

La Valley said he dashed out to the shed and found Scully's body. At Chicago, William N. Woodruff, chief of the alcoholic tax unit, said Scully's appointment was a routine matter. Woodruff said agents would be sent to Rockford to investigate.
